

Bridge the Communication Gap for Your Transitional Student with AbleNet

A student aging out doesn't have to lose access to their voice! Students can maintain access to their voice by obtaining an insurance-funded QuickTalker Freestyle speech device they can take with them once they leave the classroom.

Why Connect Your Transitional Student to AbleNet's QuickTalker Freestyle?

Skill Retention

Continuous usage helps students retain the skills they've developed over the years, ensuring their communication abilities don't regress during the transition period.

Independence and Autonomy

Continuous usage fosters independence by allowing students to communicate effectively without relying solely on others for support.

Facilitates Social Integration

The QuickTalker SDG ensures students can actively participate in social activities and maintain connections despite the tricky environmental changes that come during the transition period.

Supports Academic and Vocational Pursuits

Continued SGD usage supports students' academic and vocational pursuits, helping them transition into post-secondary education or employment.
